Preserving Addison

Join us as we celebrate Preservation Week, a nation-wide initiative that encourages libraries to foster community by sharing and saving memories for future generations!

We are celebrating with a variety of programs for all ages: make a book, digitize your memories, and care for your textiles like wedding dresses and military uniforms. Have a beloved quilt from your grandma? Come learn how to properly care for it on April 25th!

Not just a place for books, we want to encourage our community to use our Creative Studio to help preserve Addison's history. Everyone has a story to tell and a history to share so let us help you preserve it for future generations.

Our Creative Studio features the latest technology and equipment to inspire and educate a community of makers and creators. Put your old photos, slides, cassettes, records, and VHS tapes onto your computer.

"Recently I decided to go through 100's of old slides," former Addison Mayor Larry Hartwig said. "Many of them were over fifty years old, and I made a decision to either throw them out or convert them to a digital format. I ultimately chose about 500 slides I wanted to convert. I decided to try utilizing the slide scanner at the Addison Public Library. The staff was extremely accommodating and took the time to give me instruction on using their program and equipment. After about 15 minutes of instruction, I was off and running... This is a great service our library is offering the residents of our community."

Not just a place for books, we want to encourage our community to use our Creative Studio to help preserve Addison's history.

If you need some help getting your project started, make an appointment by calling 630.458.3354 or visit www.addisonlibrary.org/book-a-tech.

Staff Picks for Children

Last Stop on Market Street* by Matt de la Peña

Last Stop on Market Street follows CJ and his grandma as they take the bus to the other side of town. During their trip they see all sorts of things as well as meet lots of different people. This book is a great story with beautiful and fun pictures to enhance the text.

Hello Universe* by Erin Entrada Kelly

Virgil doesn't make friends easily, but that doesn't mean he can't have them. He is definitely going to need them when he finds himself alone in the forest with the class bully. Unknown to Virgil, his new friends will come in the form of three very special girls who will surprise him with their knowledge and bravery.

Strictly No Elephants* by Lisa Mantchev

A small boy with an even tinier elephant finds that he is not welcome in the neighborhood pet club. Instead of giving up, he finds other friends who don't quite fit in. This is a lovely picture book, perfect for family sharing, with a heartwarming message about welcoming everyone despite their differences.

Connecting to a Diverse World

Books have an almost magical ability to transport us to other worlds, other times, and the rich diversity of human experience.

“Connecting teens to places they’ve never gone and people they’ve never met through reading is one of the best parts of our job and a duty we take very seriously,” says Teen Services librarian, Elizabeth Lynch.

Our Collection Development team works hard to include books from every perspective, and we are always sharing this diversity when we recommend books through displays, at school, or during one-on-one conversations.

Leading up to the Library’s World Fest event, we will highlight the places your library card can take you with a week-long Globe Trekker Challenge. Every day after school, students can win prizes by finding materials in our collection from all over the world.

We also know that teens today are growing up in a climate that is especially divided and often hostile. There are few spaces where they can share their opinion without judgement and take the time to hear the

“Connecting teens to places they’ve never gone and people they’ve never met through reading is one of the best parts of our job and a duty we take very seriously.”
- Elizabeth Lynch, Teen Services librarian

That is why we created a regular program called Global Table. We invite teens from all backgrounds and perspectives to talk about current events with respect and understanding. Covering topics like the election, immigration, and gender, we are proud to see teens in the community building bridges across cultural and political differences.

Global Trekker Challenge

Global Table
Thursdays, Mar. 8 and Apr. 12, 6:30-8:00.

Staff Pick for Teens

American Born Chinese by Gene Luen Yang
This award-winning graphic novel masterfully blends the author’s own experience as the child of Chinese immigrants with elements of ancient fables, pop culture, and fantasy. The result is a compelling and nuanced look at what it feels like to be an outsider.

Teen programs are for grades 6-12. For all teen programs, call 630.458.3317 or visit our website.

Programming for adults is intended for ages 18 and up.
